Subsidies For Dairy Cattle Feed Described As Wasteful Program

ROLLBACKS HOIST COST

Periodical Adjustment Of Values To Regional Market Urged

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Representatives of the nation's major farm groups demanded today that OPA scrap present agricultural policies and adjust basic commodity prices periodically to regional markets.

The demand followed a day and night of testimony in which livestock men from all sections lambasted arbitrary pegging of beef cattle and hog prices solely to Chicago market levels.

"There is no hope of solving the problem of meat shortage, particularly, if the OPA arbitrarily sets a certain floor or support price for beef at Chicago and requires that it be the price for the whole country," said P. O. Wilson, secretary of the National Livestock Producers' Association.

Charles W. Holman, of Washington, secretary of the National Milk Producers' Federation, described subsidies for dairy cattle feed as the most wasteful possible sort of policy.

"To the cost of subsidies there will have to be added the cost of administration," Holman said. "Consider what it would mean to send out three or four million individual checks to farmers every month. Moreover, the farmer has enough to do without going through the complicated processes of applying for subsidies."

Rollbacks Rapped

Sen. George D. Aiken (R) Vt., agriculture committee member, charged that OPA price rollbacks and ceilings have served merely to increase the cost of meat for the consumer.

"Theoretically, meat prices were rolled back to 10 percent for the consumer last Spring," Aiken said. "Actually, that rollback meant a price increase for most consumers."

"When a ceiling price is imposed it automatically becomes the only price. Cuts that sold for more money are rolled back, but poorer quality cuts find their way into the ceiling price bracket. The public then pays less, but it gets less, too."

Union Figures Hit

Aiken said that both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations would find their estimates of subsidy cost in error and cutting deeply into wage earners' purses.

"These groups estimate the annual subsidy cost at two to three million dollars, but it is more likely to be three to five millions," Aiken asserted. Adding that much to the tax burden will make it necessary to take large

PUNCH ON JAW ENDS FLIGHT OF MURDERER

MOBILE, Ala., Nov. 16—It took only a punch in the jaw to recapture Otto George, Mobile murderer, who was back in the hands of the law today after his flight 20 days ago from Kilby prison in Montgomery, Ala.

Yank Freighter Shakes Off Submarine Punch And Delivers Cargo

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—The harrowing tale was revealed today of an American freighter which "came back" to battle a Nazi submarine and deliver her cargo of heavy tanks and locomotives in Africa after being torpedoed in the South Atlantic.

Despite her fateful adventure, the only "casualties" were a gaping hole in the hull, a crewman's fractured ankle, and a severe case of "jitters" suffered by Petunia, the ship's cat.

The freighter SS Cape Nednick, commanded by Capt. Harry E. Stark, Reading, Mass., was struck 850 miles off the coast of Africa in a night attack.

A torpedo from an unsighted submarine ripped a hole in her hull. An explosion enveloped the ship in flames. Staggering under the blow, water poured into the fireroom and bridge and flooded the forward deck and deck cargo.

While the navy gun crew fired blindly toward the unseen sub, Capt. Stark ordered most of the crew—and the cat—to abandon ship. Those remaining aboard were the skipper, Chief Mate Earl Swan, Deck Cadet Jeremiah J. Leahy, Belleville, Ill., and the gun crew.

Capt. Stark noticed that the stricken vessel, although sagging forward in the water, remained afloat. Finding that only one compartment was punctured, he rounded up a volunteer skeleton crew from lifeboats.

Before they could clamber aboard, however, the sub signaled for a lifeboat to "come over." The request was ignored. But as the ship got underway, another torpedo slithered through the water, missing her bow by ten yards.

Meantime, the gun crew sighted a faint spot about a mile away which disappeared after three salvos were fired at it. Zigzagging throughout the night, the merchantman awaited daybreak to pick up other crewmen and proceed to Malvina Bay, South Africa.

About Petunia, the cat, Capt. Stark reported:

"Back aboard, Petunia dashed up to the bridge and stayed there for the rest of the voyage. She'd jump two or three feet when we would playfully drop keys near her."

MOTHER, FOUR CHILDREN DIE IN JERSEY FIRE

JERSEY CITY, N. J., Nov. 16—A mother, her two young sons, and two girls left in her care by a neighbor were dead today—burned to death when flames gutted a two-story frame house.

Mrs. Mary Florian had agreed to care for Jacqueline and Althea Bastian, six and two respectively, while her neighbor, Mrs. Margie Bastian went to the movies. The two little girls and Mrs. Florian's sons, Donald, 11, and Kenneth, 7, were playing in the same upstairs room in which Mrs. Florian was cleaning clothes with an inflammable fluid.

The fluid suddenly burst into flames, igniting Mrs. Florian's clothing. While the frightened children huddled together upstairs, Mrs. Florian ran screaming to the lower floor on her way to the street, but stumbled and fell in the lower hallway.

Hall draperies caught fire from her burning clothing and the house was a mass of flames before firemen arrived.

CHARLES FINCH GOING TO CHAIR

Former Farm Laborer In Williamsport District Guilty Of Murder

Charles Finch, 46, alias Donald Eugene Carson, was sentenced Monday afternoon to die in the electric chair at Indiana state prison April 10.

Finch, former farm laborer in the Williamsport district, heard the sentence after Circuit Judge G. Andrew Golden, who presided in his Connerville, Ind., trial overruled a defense motion to defer passing of sentence until the new trial motion was filed.

Finch was convicted Saturday by a jury which had heard testimony of numerous witnesses during the last week. He was charged with beating to death Joseph Schoenfeld, 69-year-old Connerville farmer, while he was perpetrating a robbery. Finch had pleaded innocent of the murder, telling Indiana state police: "I was drunk that day and don't remember what happened." He had previously admitted borrowing $8 from the aged farmer during the day the man was killed. Indiana (Continued on Page Two)

GOEBBELS AGAIN URGES HUNS NOT TO LOSE NERVE

LONDON, Nov. 16—The German agency DNB revealed today that Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels found it necessary to urge the populace of the Reich once again not to lose its nerve.

Speaking for two hours in Berlin, DNB said, Goebbels told his audience to follow the recent advice by Hitler which the German leader propounded in the Munich beer hall.

With the aid of a couple of policemen and several sympathetic souls, the messenger corralled all the nickels in sight on the street. Then he descended to the lower level and returned triumphantly half an hour later with the announcement that he had retrieved "an awful lot of nickels," in addition to two dimes and three pennies.

SOVIET RADIO WARNS HUNS OF WINTER RIGORS

MOSCOW, Nov. 16—The Soviet radio in a broadcast beamed to Germany today described the position of the Nazi armies on the eastern front as "very grim."

The announcer concluded by saying:

"Snow is falling on the Russian battlefields. It will inevitably become a shroud for the German army."

Meanwhile, via Stockholm, came a report appearing in the Swiss newspaper Die Tat which said that Hitler and other German leaders were planning to escape to Japan by U-boat to continue the war should Germany be invaded or collapse.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16—Sen. Robert A. Taft (R), Ohio, called for a comprehensive investigation of the organization and administration of the proposed United Nations relief and rehabilitation program.

The issues are expected to arise in consideration of a resolution requested by President Roosevelt yesterday—authorizing congressional appropriations for relief.

"I do not object to the general method but there are two important questions which should be considered," said Taft.

"I question the form of the setup. The relief council is limited to four powers, Great Britain, Russia, China and the United States. The first there are on the receiving end.

"It seems to me that we could be outvoted and we might be put into an embarrassing situation in explaining to South America and British commonwealths why they are expected to contribute when they have no representation on the council."

Wisdom Questioned

"I also question whether it is wise to have an international organization. We ought to have such an organization for discussion, but it might be better to have relief carried out by the nations themselves. If we make contributions I see no reason why we should not get some credit."

SIX LOSE LIVES IN NAVAL MINE DEPOT BLAST

NEW YORK, Nov. 16—East Forty-Second street had finished its little laugh today at the expense of an armored truck delivery messenger—or was it?

Leaving his truck, carrying a large sack on his shoulder, the messenger stumbled just as he reached the subway grating and lost his grip on the sack. Seconds later, nickels—$4,000 of them—spewed from the bag half rolling about the street and others clattering with machine-gunlike rapidity down the catch-all beneath the grating which covers the tracks.

With the aid of a couple of policemen and several sympathetic souls, the messenger corralled all the nickels in sight on the street. Then he descended to the lower level and returned triumphantly half an hour later with the announcement that he had retrieved "an awful lot of nickels," in addition to two dimes and three pennies.

SOVIET TROOPS PIERCE NAZI LINES

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 16—Six persons were killed and 20 to 30 injured early today when an explosion occurred in an explosive warehouse at the naval mine depot at Yorktown, Va., about 30 miles from Norfolk.

Two persons were seriously injured. All dead and injured were civilians. Their names were not disclosed.

Capt. R. B. Kirkpatrick, U. S. Navy, retired, commanding officer at the depot, said the explosion caused extensive damage and started several fires which were quickly extinguished. He declined to estimate the amount of damage.

The explosion, which occurred at 12:25 a. m., threw the town's lighting system out of order.

Naval authorities banned all persons from the stricken area who were not directly connected with rescue work.

TULE LAKE FOLK CALL WAR COUNCIL

Jap Segregation Camp Control Must Remain With Army, Is Demand

TULE LAKE, Cal., Nov. 16—Demands for permanent army control of the seething Tule Lake Jap segregation camp reached fever heat today as local, civil and American Legion leaders called a war council meeting with Rep. Clair Engle, (D) Cal.

The meeting will consider Engle's plan for congressional legislation designed to take not only the Tule Lake camp but all other Jap centers in the nation out of the hands of the War Relocation Authority.

Engle also will reveal what he has learned of WRA administration through an investigation of camp records and what further evidence he will present to the Dies committee. The Dies group is expected at Tule Lake later in the week to open a formal probe into all phases of unrest at the camp as well as exhaustive study of charges that the WRA administration was marked by "incompetence and waste."

Despite army control enforced by 2,000 troops under command of Lieut. Gen. Verne Austin, sporadic outbreaks of passive resistance among the 16,000 disloyal Japs continued. Military authorities sought to end further disturbances as they seized six more Jap ring-leaders and put them in a stockade along with more than 300 other troublemakers accused of foiling the November 4 riot.

The six were charged with inciting a parade of several hundred school children through the colony Saturday which the marchers wore rising sun head bands and flaunted small Jap flags in the face of soldiers. The parades continued Sunday and again yesterday, but troops made no attempt to halt them by force.

Taking further precautions against outbreaks which brought them into camp 12 days ago to take over, soldiers were reported to be searching the Jap colony for weapons and other contraband using an electric metal detector. In a house-to-house search troops hoped to uncover more knives and arms such as were found after the riots.

A search also was reported being made for an "undercover" Jap language newspaper. One Jap paper for which permission was granted by the WRA is still being published and circulated throughout the colony.

CARNATION BULL BRINGS RECORD PRICE OF $26,000

WAUKESHA, Wis., Nov. 16—Carnation Madcap Supreme, a yearling bull of distinguished lineage, brought $26,000, a record price for recent years, at the U. S. National Blue Ribbon Holstein sale in Waukesha, officials announced today.

The bull was bought by the Curtis Candy Co., for its farm at Libertyville, Ill., and was sold to Baranovka, only 80 miles from the prewar frontier of Poland. Moscow said "enormous losses" were being suffered by the enemy.

Further north in the vicinity of Kaganovich a Russian column smashed through to within 20 miles of the important rail junction of Ovruck, intersection of two strategic railway lines.

Still further north other Red army units cut the Gomel-Rechitsa rail line and tightened the Soviet pincer closing in on Gomel itself. The Russians smashed into Demicli, 35 miles west of Gomel, on the main east-west Gomel-Pinsk-Warsaw railroad, thus depriving another segment of the German army of a route of evacuation by rail and narrowing the Nazis' escape corridor in the northwest to 40 miles.

JAPS BOMBED

In the Pacific United States army and navy airmen kept up an uninterrupted hammering of Jap shipping and island installations. Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported that Navy Catalina patrol bombers scored direct hits on a 10,000-ton Jap cruiser and a large enemy merchant ship, which were trying to sneak through to the beleaguered enemy forces at Rabaul.

Keep America American Campaign Opened By Circleville Kiwanis

Circleville Kiwanis club opened a "Keep America American" campaign Monday evening when it invited numerous organization leaders to hear Dr. Otto Ebert of Bexley Lutheran church outline the impressive project undertaken by Kiwanis International.

The Kiwanis club is seeking cooperation of all Circleville civic, patriotic and fraternal organizations in carrying out the local phase of the program.

Dr. Ebert declared that "while the principal job faced by every one now is one designed to bring the war to successful culmination, we must still think in terms of keeping our democratic form of government, one of the people, by the people and for the people, even after the great struggle is ended."

"We must be an awakened American public," he declared, "one which will strive to safeguard the things which are ours. This democracy of ours has given us freedom of speech, freedom of worship, and most of all freedom of opportunity. We must safeguard all these."

NON-PARTISAN MOVE

The speaker went on to declare that the "Keep America American" program is not political, nor is it partisan.

"The greatest work any of us can do as individuals is to do everything we can do to keep America American. The job is bigger than anything else we can do," the pastor told his listeners.

Dr. Ebert declared the "Keep America American" movement is not isolationist. "We realize that the whole world must move forward together. We are neighbors one to another. But we are not one in everything. Our nation must keep its identity after the war."

"Any person who is not willing to do everything in his power to keep America American must be looked on as a traitor," the speaker stated, "and he has no right to the privileges offered, whether he is a citizen or an alien."

APPEALS TO ALL

The Bexley pastor also appealed to all in the audience to "Keep His America American", referring to the soldier and sailor who are fighting on foreign lands to protect what they left behind. "Don't let them be disappointed when they come home," he pleaded, "to find that their country is not as they left it."

Dr. Ebert also voiced a plea to "Keep Their America American", referring to the nation's children, so they will be able to enjoy the rights and privileges previous generations have enjoyed.

Harold Limback, club president, spoke briefly at the conclusion of Dr. Ebert's talk, presenting Dwight Steele, chairman of the club's War Time Citizenship committee, who outlined further the club's program to put the Keep America American program into every home in the community.

Mr. Steele said cooperation will be asked from every organization represented at the meeting.

Among guests were Captain Earl Gordon, recently returned from China; Lieutenant William D. Radcliff; Corporal Morris Gordon, George P. Foreman, W. C. Kochheimer, F. O. Alexander, Clark Will, Norbert Cochran, G. C. Griffith, Ray Alter, Miss Rose Good, Miss Elma Rains, Dr. G. D. Phillips, Everett Seeds, A. B. Cooper, John Madex, A. V. Osborn, Judson Lanman, S. L. Warner and John Bolender.

The meeting was held in Hanley's tearoom.

KINGSTON MAN AMONG CASUALTIES IN ITALY

Private Francis Kelley of Kingston, an infantryman in the U. S. army, was reported Tuesday by the War department to have been seriously injured in fighting in Italy October 14.

News of the youth's injury was received from the War department by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Kelley, Kingston, and his wife, Edith, also of Kingston.

The war office said that additional information would be forwarded to the Kelleys as soon as it is obtained.

COUNCIL TO MEET

Another general business meeting is scheduled Wednesday evening when Circleville council gathers for its regular session. Several matters continued from the meeting two weeks ago will probably be discussed, among them being pay raises for policemen and firemen.

MILBURN DEVORS LISTED AMONG MISSING IN WAR

War department has informed Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Devors of Ashville that their son, Private Wilbur Devors, Jr., 19, is missing in action in Italy.

The war office, in a telegram to Mr. and Mrs. Devors, said the youth has been missing in action since October 13. At that time the Fifth army under General Mark Clark was fighting in the Volturno river district north of Naples.

A communiqué dated October 13 states that units of the Fifth army made some landings back of the German forces in the Volturno area. It is believed possible that the youth might have been in one of these landing expeditions which are regarded by army men as of great strategical value, but dangerous.

Young Devors, who was born at Hanging Rock, O., December 7, 1923, being 18 years old on the date of the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, entered service only nine months ago. He left Circleville February 20.

The Ashville youth is the second cousin to be listed as a casualty in the last week. Private Robert Mouser, 22, of New Holland, was reported killed in action during October. His sister, Lillian, received word of his death last week. He, too, was inducted last February.

Finch's attorney acted to delay sentence immediately after conviction Saturday. Conviction on the charge of first degree murder meant a mandatory death sentence according to the law, that was in effect in 1938 when Schoenfeld was slain. Later changes were made in the law providing for either death penalty or life imprisonment.

The defendant's request to the court asked postponement of passing sentence because of the change in the law.

The death penalty was invoked after Judge Golden refused any further delay.

HOW CONGRESS DOES IT

ROBERT L. Doughton is 80 years old. This chairman of the house of representatives ways and means committee has been coming to congress from North Carolina ever since 1911. To this regularity of return, even more than to his undoubted talents, he owes his present post.

Congress is like that. It reveres seniority above everything else. One break in science, and the most veteran congressman goes down to the bottom of the list. Uncle Joe Cannon, the famous speaker of the house in the days of Roosevelt I, was an example. Elected to the house in 1873, by 1890 he had worked up to a point just below the speakership. Then a landslide defeated him for reelection, and he had to start all over again. Though he returned to congress in 1892, he did not become speaker till 1903.

Cannon's abilities and Doughton's entitled them both to high rank years before they attained it. If the army followed seniority as rigidly as congress does, Gens. Marshall and MacArthur would still be somewhere down the ladder, possibly colonels, taking orders from some gray-beard. The congressional system puts a premium on strength of body, and not on strength of mind.

BOYS TOWN HEROES

ONCE in a while there comes to this office a quiet little sheet from Boys Town, Nebraska, where Father Flanagan carries on his great work of making useful citizens of homeless, abandoned boys, regardless of race or creed. Lately these sheets have taken the form of copies of citations. One by W. F. Halsey, Vice Admiral, U. S. Navy, reads:

"For distinguished service in the line of his profession on the northern coast of Guadalcanal Island on August 10, 1942. While a member of a patrol advancing through enemy territory, Haggard, with utter disregard for his own personal safety, fearlessly faced the accurate rifle fire of numerous enemy snipers to treat the wounds of incapacitated marines. Largely as a result of his valorous action the lives of several of the wounded were saved, and he set a fine example of courage to the members of his company."

The young man cited was Wesley Burton Haggard, pharmacist's mate second class, USN. His silver star medal is only one of a number of decorations given Father Flanagan's boys, hundreds of whom are now in the armed services. Eight of them have given their lives for their country. Boys Town has become a Town of Heroes.

The saddest thing, for mice or men, but especially for automobiles, is to be upside down on the road.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON

HAMILTON LIKES DEWEY

WAshington—the coast-to-coast stop Willkie tour of handsome urbane John Hamilton seems to be getting nowhere fast. Reports from the West coast are that everyone is glad to see the popular ex-GOP national committee chairman, but that he offers nothing for something.

In Seattle last week, for instance, he told Republican friends that he thought Tom Dewey would be nominated, but that Roosevelt would beat him. Reaction of Hamilton's listeners was negative. They felt he radiated, without intending to do so, a defeatist attitude.

In Seattle, Hamilton was the guest of live-wire young Republican Fred Baker. Though Baker is for Willkie, he took pains to see that Hamilton talked to all groups of Republicans—Deweyites, Brickerites, AFL leaders, women's organizations, county leaders, and state legislators.

Hamilton proposed as proper GOP timber one of the following four: Gen. MacArthur, Gov. Warren of California, Gov. Saltonstall of Mass., Gov. Baldwin of Conn. He described Bricker as a great disappointment.

John described himself as representing a group of people in big states with heavy electoral votes who were dead set against Willkie and wanted to see what other candidates sat well with the country. He shied away from giving details as to who were in the group of prominent Republicans he represented, though he did not deny being backed by Pennsylvania's Oil Man Pew. This, of course, was taken for granted.

DORIS DUKE'S DOGS

New Deal Glamour Girl Evie Robert, champion of underprivileged dogs, was busy some time ago organizing a Tail-Wagger's club to help rescue stray curs.

She conceived the idea of enlisting blue blood dogs as charter members, and approached Doris Duke Cromwell, richest woman in the world, now suing her husband for divorce.

Doris had twelve dogs, and Evie proposed that if they were all enrolled in the Tail-Wagger's club it would make the pet club fashionable, and lesser lights would follow suit. Doris consented.

"All right," concluded Evie, "that makes your twelve dogs members and you owe me one dollar a piece membership dues a total of twelve dollars."

"What!" exclaimed the richest woman in the world. "You didn't tell me about that. I'll have to think it over more carefully. Send me some literature."

WHISKY SPECULATION

There has been a mysterious stock market rise in American Distilling company stock—so sudden and mysterious that the Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating. The stock jumped from a low of 15 to a high of 72.

Here is the inside story of this meteoric zoom. It has been rumored that American Distilling would go out of business. Ordinarily, this would cause the stock to drop, not rise.

But with whisky stocks low throughout the country, people have been buying into American Distilling company with the idea that if the company should be liquidated they would get a distribution of the company's whisky.

American Distilling has about one barrel for each stockholder, so Wall street has

• IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is upset about the recent Republican gains, you cannot tell it from the tilt of his cigar holder. The angle is as jaunty as ever. The administration continues to step high, wide and fancy. However, some of those flotsams and jetsams that make up an over-eager lot of the population of this congested spot are beginning to wonder if it is going to be worth while to keep on being nice to New Dealers. Maybe it is time to play up to Republicans. They may be the Right People soon.

• SOMETIMES, I AM CONVINCED that Washington doesn't know one sound thing about the country of which it is the capital. Certainly, if you seldom get your nose out of this highly charged place you forget the United States lies to the north, south and west. You think there is just Washington.

For, try as you will, you cannot help being affected by the attitude of government office holders, you're so close to the gang. Also, it takes a stout frame to not be constantly aware in your bones that Franklin and Eleanor Roosevelt are still in the White House and are likely to be there four years more if the Republicans cannot prop up somebody mighty powerful.

Hull is a "chevalier sans reproche." But can he swear? Can he? Humph! Ask anybody who got on the wrong side of his Tennessee drawl.

It is generally pretty fine to see a man 72 years old in not too good health jump over to a strange country and pull off so magnificent a coup as the Moscow Pact. Sort of heartens up the whole world—if you're not a Nazi.

Chinese Cookery Vs New Orleans

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

"JUST GOT back from New Orleans," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs. "Went to a few clinics just to see what they were up to, but I spent most of my time eating.

"Great place to eat, New Orleans, as you well know. They cook their food enough—You know I had a Chinese cook once, and while I don't want to say anything against one of our allies, according to my standard their way of cooking is all wrong. They wait until about five minutes before the meal is to be served and then they put her all on and turn up the fire full on and let her simmer until just before they bring it in and then you have food that is sort of hot and cooked on the outside but nearly raw in the middle.

"Now in New Orleans that plan is out. Why, I actually believe some of the food I had been cooked and re-cooked half a dozen times. Then they put everything together and let the juices swap around and in these days of rationing that is quite an advantage. Veal tastes like sweet potato, and still there is just a little individual difference so it doesn't seem as if they are trying to cheat you.

Cook for Taste

"New Orleans is making the last stand against the vitamin. So a doctor down there told me. It is the last city in the country where the cooking is based on taste and not on whether it is healthy.

"This fellow said most of the cooks in New Orleans have never heard of vitamins A, B, C, D, E, F and G. And these vitamins tend to avoid Harry Cole in it; she just hadn't thought of Andrews as being any other place than Pennington until she married Jim.

"Jim," Andrews lighted on his name. "That's part of it, Beth." She leaned forward, speaking earnestly. "I . . . I have to be near Jim now." For a moment Beth thought she was going to say something more, something important, but Andrews said, "Don't you see?"

Beth waited.

"Will there?" Andrews asked.

Beth said she didn't know what there would be. In fact, she added, her imagination was too stunned to invent any picture with Andrews in it; she just hadn't thought of Andrews as being any other place than Pennington until she married Jim.

"Well," Andrews lighted on his name. "That's part of it, Beth." She leaned forward, speaking earnestly. "I . . . I have to be near Jim now." For a moment Beth thought she was going to say something more, something important, but Andrews said, "Don't you see?"

Beth shook her head.

"Will there?" Andrews asked.

Beth said she didn't know what there would be. In fact, she added, her imagination was too stunned to invent any picture with Andrews in it; she just hadn't thought of Andrews as being any other place than Pennington until she married Jim.

"Come on, Beth, I have to change my clothes. Save the lectures for later. Also stop worrying about Mr. Cole. I'll meet other men and, hereafter, I'll take care that they will have enough money so you won't have to worry about my bankrupting them."

Beth found herself sputtering like an angry hen, and was genuinely angry with herself and with Andrews. Lecturing Andrews had always made her feel older than her years, and now she was doing it again, just when she'd begun to feel free and young.

SYNOPSIS

Beth nodded. She knew, "So you see, dear?" "There aren't any places to live, Andrea. Girls are pouring into Washington all the time." "He's not my Vernon," Beth said crossly.

"I can live with you until I get something," Andrea said in a small voice, looking at Beth from under her lashes. "Can't I?"

"And share my three-quarter bed?"

"We've done it before," Andrea murmured.

"But you'd have to have a job

You have to get jobs through civil service, Andy. That may take months. What would you live on?"

Beth threw a towel at her.

"I'm sorry," Beth said contritely. "I do seem to ride you, don't I?"

The old worried mother complex

I guess. Well, have a good time tonight and try not to make any noise coming upstairs. The third step creaks so it would wake the dead, among which I practically will be

Andrea went off, wearing her buff suit and Beth's brown and orange jersey turban, Beth's beige gloves and carrying Beth's brown bag.

Beth tried to knit that night, but she found herself adding stitches where no stitches should be added, and so she clicked off the radio and the light beside her bed and lay far into the night, thinking.

She thought of Dennis Archer and wondered why Andrews had not mentioned him. And she thought of Jim and wondered why Andrews did not think it strange that she, who had been his best friend for three years, seemed so uninterested in him that she never asked questions about him.

On the verge of sleep, she was awakened by the realization that Andrews' presence in Washington would mean that Jim would be there, too. Perhaps he'd come every weekend.

If Andrews were in Washington, Beth found herself saying a little prayer that Andrews would not be.

With the prayer was forlorn hope.

More and more offices and bureaus were being established daily. Any girl who could hold a pencil could get a job. She hadn't been entirely honest when she told Andrews such jobs came only through civil service examinations. If she could only convince her.

She fell asleep then and when she woke it was 8 o'clock and Andrews was sleeping peacefully beside her.

Her hat was on the floor, her brand new hat. Beth picked it up and brushed it off. Then she set the alarm for 9 o'clock, left a note to tell Andrews she could get breakfast up to 9:30 in the dining room, and went off to work feeling about 65 years old.

Making up her mouth, with Beth's new cyclamen lipstick, Andrea tried to coax her back into good humor. "I like your Vernon." "He's not my Vernon," Beth said crossly.

Andrea's big eyes widened. "No, but, honey, you have dates with him three times a week and you let him spend his money on you."

"That's different," Beth said heatedly.

"Not one bit! He's got a crush on you, if I can read the cow eyes he makes in your direction, and is that fair? Is that like my Beth to lead nice simply boys on?"

"As long as you do it, it's okay, but let bad girl Andrews find herself a useful beau and you get all holy and righteous."

"I'm sorry," Beth said contritely. "I do seem to ride you, don't I?"

HOW CONGRESS DOES IT

ROBERT L. Doughton is 80 years old. This chairman of the house of representatives ways and means committee has been coming to congress from North Carolina ever since 1911. To this regularity of return, even more than to his undoubted talents, he owes his present post.

Congress is like that. It reveres seniority above everything else. One break in sequence, and the most veteran congressman goes down to the bottom of the list. Uncle Joe Cannon, the famous speaker of the house in the days of Roosevelt I, was an example. Elected to the house in 1873, by 1890 he had worked up to a point just below the speakership. Then a landslide defeated him for reelection, and he had to start all over again. Though he returned to congress in 1892, he did not become speaker till 1903.

Cannon's abilities and Doughton's entitled them both to high rank years before they attained it. If the army followed seniority as rigidly as congress does, Gens. Marshall and MacArthur would still be somewhere down the ladder, possibly colonels, taking orders from some gray-beard. The congressional system puts a premium on strength of body, and not on strength of mind.

BOYS TOWN HEROES

ONCE in a while there comes to this office a quiet little sheet from Boys Town, Nebraska, where Father Flanagan carries on his great work of making useful citizens of homeless, abandoned boys, regardless of race or creed. Lately these sheets have taken the form of copies of citations. One by W. F. Halsey, Vice Admiral, U. S. Navy, reads:

"For distinguished service in the line of his profession on the northern coast of Guadalcanal Island on August 10, 1942. While a member of a patrol advancing through enemy territory, Haggard, with utter disregard for his own personal safety, fearlessly faced the accurate rifle fire of numerous enemy snipers to treat the wounds of incapacitated marines. Largely as a result of his valorous action the lives of several of the wounded were saved, and he set a fine example of courage to the members of his company."

The young man cited was Wesley Burton Haggard, pharmacist's mate second class, USN. His silver star medal is only one of a number of decorations given Father Flanagan's boys, hundreds of whom are now in the armed services. Eight of them have given their lives for their country. Boys Town has become a Town of Heroes.

The saddest thing, for mice or men, but especially for automobiles, is to be upside down on the road.

Inside WASHINGTON

Gay Washington Celebrates Good News Ere It Happens

Dinners, Teas and Parties Abound in Cheerful Capital

By HELEN ESSARY

Central Press Columnist

WASHINGTON—The capital's mood of the moment is definitely gay. Slightly batty, if you ask me.

There are so many mink coats and silly hats and intense handshakes and come-hither smiles and cocktails around you would think it was Christmas. If you didn't remember that thousands of helpless people were fighting and dying within sound of the hilted-voiced radio.

There's a feeling in the air that the end of the war is near. The success of the Moscow Pact which everybody dreaded to think about before it was undertaken has loosened the anxiety which never went deep into the heart of this light-headed capital.

Everybody is giving parties—dinners, luncheons, teas, receptions, theater and after-the-concert suppers. The neutral nations—Turkey, Egypt and Iran—have been receiving guests by the hundreds and feeding them on bounteous afternoon buffets of turkey, ham, champagne, sweetmeats and saucoups Scotch.

This afternoon the triumphant Soviet is having the most splendid entertainment of its capital era since that thrilling day several years ago when Soviet Ambassador Troyanovsky joyfully opened the reconditioned embassy of the czar and to United States recognition and several thousand curious hungry and thirsty guests. That was the day when the newly-shined candlesticks of the old regime and the red carpets proved to me, at least, that the U. S. S. R. meant to be capitalist in the grand manner as soon as it could get its proletarian housecleaning done.

Washington, official and otherwise, is engaged indeed this November in celebrating whatever there is to celebrate and whatever there may be to celebrate some day soon. Norway is entertaining in its usually charming manner. The occasion—the visit of the Norwegian minister of reconstruction. Norway, likely the first of the occupied countries to be freed from the dictator's grip, is getting ready for the good days to come—God willing.

• IF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT is upset about the recent Republican gains, you cannot tell it from the tilt of his cigarette holder. The angle is as jaunty as ever. The administration continues to step high, wide and fancy. However, some of those flotsams and jetsams that make up an over-eager lot of the population of this congested spot are beginning to wonder if it is going to be worth while to keep on being nice to New Dealers. Maybe it is time to play up to Republicans. They may be the Right People soon.

• SOMETIMES, I AM CONVINCED that Washington doesn't know one sound thing about the country of which it is the capital. Certainly, if you seldom get your nose out of this highly charged place you forget the United States lies to the north, south and west. You think there is just Washington.

SYNOPSIS

Roommates and cousins, BETTY KINNAN, serious-minded and trusting, and ANDREA BARNES, rather self-centered and selfish, find that the tenses accompanying America's involvement in the war is beginning to affect their lives. For three years Beth has been going with JIM RONALD, who still has not been too successful in getting ahead in the world while Andrea has been attracted by DENNIS ARCHER, 15 years her senior, but wealthy and interesting—and also married. . . .

TESTERDAY: Andrea announces unexpectedly that she is going to stay in Washington.

• Andrea nodded. She knew.

"So you see, dear?"

"There aren't any places to live, Andrea. Girls are pouring into Washington all the time."

"He's not 'my' Vernon," Beth said crossly.

Andrea's big eyes widened. "No, but honey, you have dates with him three times a week and let him spend his money on you."

"That's different," Beth said heatedly.

"I've done it before," Andrea murmured.

"But you'd have to have a job. You have to get jobs through civil service, Andy. That may take months. What would you live on?"

"You have some money. Couldn't you lend me a little—if I needed it?" She caught her lower lip between her teeth. "But I may not need it," she added hastily. "I... I have a little. Some you don't know about."

"As long as you do it, it's okay, but let bad girl Andrea find herself a useful beau and you get all holy and righteous."

"I'm sorry," Beth said contritely. "I do seem to ride you, don't I?"

The old worried mother complex I guess. Well, have a good time coming upstairs. The third step creaks so it would wake the dead, among which I practically will be tonight."

Andrea went off, wearing her buff suit and Beth's brown and orange jersey turban, Beth's beige gloves and carrying Beth's brown bag.

Beth tried to knit that night, but she found herself adding stitches where no stitches should be added, and so she clicked off the radio and the light beside her bed and lay flat.

Andrea sighed. "Oh, Beth, what kind of a girl do you think I am? I've been looking around for weeks for somebody to move in with for both of us? You said you missed me, and I know I missed you, so why should we be apart?"

Beth let herself drop into a big chair from which she surveyed Andrea with hopelessness.

"I'm touched by this display of sisterly affection," she said, "but not at all by it. Give."

Andrea chuckled. "You know, Beth, you're the only person in the whole world who won't let me pull the well-known wool over her eyes. Not but what I just said isn't true. You're a grand person to live with, and life is not the same with Peg. She makes me toe the mark, do my share of the work, which you never did, but there won't be any work here."

Beth thought, "Everybody considered but me." She said, "And about Harry Cole? You don't give a fig for him, but you'll let him spend his money on you, and he hasn't much. He spent an awful lot on Saturday, and then again yesterday."

"He's very useful, darling," Andrea looked at her wrist watch.

"Will there?" Andrea asked.

Beth said she didn't know what would be. In fact, she added, her imagination was too stunned to invent any picture with Andrea in it; she just hadn't thought of Andrea as being any other place than Pennington until she married Jim.

"Jim!" Andrea lit on his name. "That's part of it, Beth." She leaned forward, speaking earnestly. "I... I have to be near Jim now." For a moment Beth thought she was going to say something more, something important, but Andrea said, "Don't you see?"

Beth shook her head.

"Well, Washington is nearer Abington, and it costs so much to come down from Pennington. When... when people are... are in love, they want to see each other."

"He can't afford to pay for flattery, and anyway, flattery is dishonest. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."

"Come on, Beth, I have to change my clothes. Save the lectures for later. Also stop worrying about Mr. Cole. I'll meet other men and, hereafter, I'll take care that they will have enough money so you won't have to worry about my bankrupting

Sorosis Club Meets With Mrs. Newhouse

Miss Twila West Gives Talk on England

Williamsport Sorosis club met Monday at the home of Mrs. Edna Newhouse of that community where 25 members and two guests, Mrs. Frank Kirby and Mrs. Joseph Valney, gathered for a delightful evening. Miss Twila West in an interesting talk discussed England, telling of its geography, customs and experiences during the present World War. Miss West's talk included information concerning her grandparents who came to the United States from their home in England. She showed pictures of their home and told of relatives still living in that country. Following this background discussion, Miss West presented an excellent review of the book, "Women of England."

Mrs. S. B. Metzger, president, conducted the business hour and received reports of Mrs. W. D. Heiskell, treasurer, and Mrs. Fred Tipton, secretary. Mrs. Van Meter Hulse was received as a new member. Committee reports were accepted.

Plans were made for a Christmas party and exchange at the next meeting, Monday, December 13, at the home of Mrs. John H. Dunlap Jr. of Williamsport pike. The meeting has been set forward one week because of the Christmas holiday period.

Mrs. Newhouse served cookies, tea and coffee from a table in the dining room, attractive in its Thanksgiving season decorations. Mrs. Harry McGhee and Mrs. Metzger presided. Mrs. George LeMay and Mrs. William Schleich were assisting hostesses.

It may be a sign of bowel worms! And those roundworms can cause real trouble! Other warnings are: uneasy stomach, nervousness, headache, irregular bowel movements, get Jayne's Vermifuge today! JAYNE'S is America's leading proprietary worm medicine: used by millions for over a century. Acts gently yet drives out roundworms. Demand JAYNE'S VERMIFUGE.

Try this great blood-iron tonic—Lydia Pinkham's Compound TONIC (with added iron) is one of the safest ways to get iron into the blood. Pinkham's Tablets are also famous to relieve symptoms of functional monthly women's trouble. It is a safe, non-stimulating effect on one of woman's most important organs. Follow label directions.

Many doctors say constipation with its headaches, mental dullness and that half alive feeling often results if fiber fails to move every day into your intestines—so take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets to insure gentle yet thorough bowel movements. Olive Tablets (purple vegetable) are simply wonderful to stir up liver bile flow and relieve constipation. Follow label directions. 13¢, 30¢, 60¢.

Much Material Lost To U. S. Plants By Shipments To Foreign Lands

A paper salvage campaign, designed to be the largest Circleville has conducted since the Container Corporation of America plant voiced an appeal for scrap paper to help it continue operations through the Winter, will be staged here Wednesday.

Need for scrap paper is being stressed by the C. C. of A. plant, through its manager, Norbert Cochran, who declared that without a sufficient supply of scrap paper the company cannot long remain in full operation. Since the Container plant is on almost 100 percent war production and because it is one of Circleville's major industries, local scrap salvage officials are taking steps to set up a regular schedule of paper salvage drives which will supply the materials needed.

Dan McClain, chairman of the Pickaway county salvage committee, said Tuesday that the entire program will be carried out through schools of Circleville.

Up To Pupils

"Children of all ages and all grades are being asked to cooperate, and their parents have an important role, also," the drive chairman pointed out. "It is our plan that every youngster in the city take as much paper to school as he can possibly carry. The school boys and girls are also being asked to contact their neighbors who may have no children. Or the neighbors themselves may take their waste paper to the school building nearest their homes."

Mr. McClain pointed out that there will be no house to house collection in this campaign, all activity being centered around the efforts of school boys and girls in their own neighborhoods. After the paper has been taken to the schools, trucks will remove it to the Container plant where it will be put into immediate use.

Container Corporation officials pointed out that they will accept newspapers, magazines, cardboard boxes, cartons, paper bags, wrapping paper, discarded letters and envelopes, and added that even cigarette wrappers are acceptable since they can be reclaimed.

The drive to be conducted Wednesday is the only one which will be staged between now and mid-December. About December 18 another paper salvage effort will be made.

School children were told of the importance of the paper salvage drive Monday when John Dexter of the Ohio salvage committee made a tour of the city's school buildings with Mr. McClain. Both spoke to children of the school system, urging their cooperation and the importance of the salvage work in the Container Corporation plant's work program.

Mr. Cochran said Tuesday that the paper drives are necessitated because so many cartons and other containers going overseas to the Allied armies and also going out of the country on lend-lease contracts are not reclaimable. When the cartons and containers remain in this country they are salvaged, but after going overseas they are lost so far as the local paper industry is concerned.

THEIR WASTES ARE OUR WEALTH

Two persons who have violated state game laws paid fines Monday to Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges following their arrest by Game Protectors Clarence Francis and Irvin Patrick.

They were Ben Kerns, Williamsport RFD, fined $25 and costs on each of two charges of possessing cock pheasants, and Mrs. Esther Valentine, Walnut street, fined $15 and costs on each of two charges for possession of muskrat pelts.

PAIR HELD IN ROBBERY RELEASED FROM JAIL

Paul Timberlake and Irene Pennington, both of Columbus, were released from Pickaway county jail Monday on their own recognizance after spending several weeks in the jail. Both are charged with robbery of William O. Daniels, Columbus railroader, who says that they robbed him when he slept in his automobile south of Circleville.

Daniels had picked up the pair in Columbus and had made the rounds of the Columbus "spots" before starting on a ride. When he awoke, the railroader said, his money was gone, and so were the two passengers. They were arrested in Chillicothe the following day.

Timberlake was wearing a service uniform, having been discharged only recently.

The pair was released without bond at the request of Daniels. Both have promised to reappear at any time they are notified.

Charges against them will be weighed November 29 when the September term grand jury goes into session.

WALTER AUSTIN BROWN DIES AT CITY HOSPITAL

Walter Austin Brown, 65, 135 Pleasant street, died Monday at 3:10 p. m. in Berger hospital where he had been taken Sunday for medical treatment. He had been in failing health for several months.

Mr. Brown is survived by his widow, the former Anna Alice Samson; three brothers, James G. Brown, 119 West Ohio street, William Brown of Sterling, Ill., and Charles Brown of Ottway, Scioto county, and one sister, Mrs. Emma Spriggs, of Stockdale, Pike county.

Mr. Brown was born in Pike county and was the son of William B. and Sarah Samson Brown.

Funeral arrangements in charge of the Defenbaugh funeral home have not been completed. Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday.

HUSBAND ASKS DIVORCE

Pearl Congrove of Saltcreek township filed divorce action Monday in Pickaway county common pleas court against Gladys Congrove, whom he charges with wilful absence. The couple was married in Chillicothe in May, 1931, Congrove charging that his wife left him in September, 1939. The couple has no children.

MOTORIST POSTS BOND

Clarence Smith, 19, of Newark, posted $3 bond Monday in police court after running a red traffic light at Mill and Court streets.

But the committee butchered

John W. Richter, 85, died at 1 p. m. Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Effie Hildenbrand, Pickaway township, of complications after an illness of two weeks. One other daughter, Mrs. Florence Jones, of near Kingston, survives, together with one grandson and one great grandson of the same community.

Funeral services will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Hildenbrand. Burial in the Hallsville cemetery will be in charge of the Whitsel funeral home, Chillicothe. Friends may call at the Hildenbrand home after Wednesday noon.

CONGRESS DOWN ON DOCTORS

Despite the dangerous shortage of doctors and dentists, the House Appropriations Committee slashed a $1,000,000 request by the U. S. Public Health Service from the Supplemental Defense Bill.

However, what most observers missed was the fact that this same committee less than six months ago disapproved $175,000 request for medical relief ON THE GROUND THAT THE REQUEST SHOULD HAVE BEEN BIGGER!

The $1,000,000 fund, was to enable the relocation of 600 doctors and dentists in areas where they are desperately needed, and was vetoed despite warnings by War Manpower's Dr. Frank H. Lahey, the American Medical Association, and the War and Navy Departments that in some areas there was only one physician to every 3,000 civilians.

But the committee butchered

In making his appeal for more money for the city, Mr. Adkins pointed to the large balances carried over by the commissioners this year. The treasury balances the $1,000,000 just the same.

In contrast, here is how the same committee ruled last May on a $175,000 request for relocating 70 physicians:

"The committee is well aware that the shortage of physicians in many sections of the country is acute, but considers that any program which would provide for the services of only 70 physicians is so ineffective as to be unjustifiable.

"The committee is willing to give consideration to any type of program which the Public Health Service may suggest to meet the need in a more adequate manner."

The school boys and girls are also being asked to contact their neighbors who may have no children. Or the neighbors themselves may take their waste paper to the school building nearest their homes."

Mr. McClain pointed out that there will be no house to house collection in this campaign, all activity being centered around the efforts of school boys and girls in their own neighborhoods. After the paper has been taken to the schools, trucks will remove it to the Container plant where it will be put into immediate use.

Container Corporation officials pointed out that they will accept newspapers, magazines, cardboard boxes, cartons, paper bags, wrapping paper, discarded letters and envelopes, and added that even cigarette wrappers are acceptable since they can be reclaimed.

The drive to be conducted Wednesday is the only one which will be staged between now and mid-December. About December 18 another paper salvage effort will be made.

School children were told of the importance of the paper salvage drive Monday when John Dexter of the Ohio salvage committee made a tour of the city's school buildings with Mr. McClain. Both spoke to children of the school system, urging their cooperation and the importance of the salvage work in the Container Corporation plant's work program.

Mr. Cochran said Tuesday that the paper drives are necessitated because so many cartons and other containers going overseas to the Allied armies and also going out of the country on lend-lease contracts are not reclaimable. When the cartons and containers remain in this country they are salvaged, but after going overseas they are lost so far as the local paper industry is concerned.

ILLEGAL GAME SENDS TWO BEFORE JUSTICE

Two persons who have violated state game laws paid fines Monday to Justice of the Peace B. T. Hedges following their arrest by Game Protectors Clarence Francis and Irvin Tripathi.

They were Ben Kerns, Williamsport RFD, fined $25 and costs on each of two charges of possessing cock pheasants, and Mrs. Esther Valentine, Walnut street, fined $15 and costs on each of two charges for possession of muskrat pelts.

The pheasant season does not come in until next Friday. Muskrats may be taken now, the season opening Monday, but Mrs. Valentine was arrested Saturday, two days before opening of the season.

PAIR HELD IN ROBBERY RELEASED FROM JAIL

Paul Timberlake and Irene Pennington, both of Columbus, were released from Pickaway county jail Monday on their own recognizance after spending several weeks in the jail. Both are charged with robbery of William O. Daniels, Columbus railroader, who says that they robbed him when he slept in his automobile south of Circleville.

Daniels had picked up the pair in Columbus and had made the rounds of the Columbus "spots" before starting on a ride. When he awakened, the railroader said, his money was gone, and so were the two passengers. They were arrested in Chillicothe the following day.

Timberlake was wearing a service uniform, having been discharged only recently.

The pair was released without bond at the request of Daniels. Both have promised to reappear at any time they are notified.

Charges against them will be weighed November 29 when the September term grand jury goes into session.

CONGRESS DOWN ON DOCTORS

Despite the dangerous shortage of doctors and dentists, the House Appropriations Committee slashed a $1,000,000 request by the U. S. Public Health Service from the Supplemental Defense Bill.

However, what most observers missed was the fact that this same committee less than six months ago disapproved a $175,000 request for medical relief ON THE GROUND THAT THE REQUEST SHOULD HAVE BEEN BIGGER!

The $1,000,000 fund, was to enable the relocation of 600 doctors and dentists in areas where they are desperately needed, and was vetoed despite warnings by War Manpower's Dr. Frank H. Lahey, the American Medical Association, the American Dental Association, and the War and Navy Departments that in some areas there was only one physician to every 3,000 civilians.

But the committee butchered

the $1,000,000 just the same. In contrast, here is how the same committee ruled last May on a $175,000 request for relocating 70 physicians:

"The committee is well aware that the shortage of physicians in many sections of the country is acute, but considers that any program which would provide for the services of only 70 physicians is so ineffective as to be unjustifiable."

"The committee is willing to give consideration to any type of program which the Public Health Service may suggest to meet the need in a more adequate manner."
